

LESLIE MAHLEY is a senior Urban and Environmental Policy major from Houston, TX. On campus, Leslie is a board member of the Queer Straight Alliance, has worked on a campaign to bring Gender Neutral Housing to Occidental's residence halls, and has been the Special Events Director of WYSE (Women and Youth Supporting Each Other) a mentoring program for local middle school girls. Leslie has also worked with various LA groups focused on environmental health and justice issues, such as East Yard Communities for Environmental Justice, USC Keck School of Medicine, and the Coalition for Clean Air.

JENNA LIPPE-KLEIN is a senior Anthropology major from Palo Alto, CA. As a freshman, she revived the Student Labor Action Coalition (SLAC) and has since served as the Southern California Regional Organizer for United Students Against Sweatshops (USAS). Jenna received a Strauss Scholarship to set up a tutoring program for youth at the Garment Worker Center in downtown Los Angeles. She also organized the annual Employee Appreciation Luncheon at Occidental and helped to establish free English classes for campus dining and facilities employees.

In 2004, four students (Christina Wong, Penny Saephan, Genevieve Hansen and Leticia Dominguez) co-founded the SCIENTIFIC SCHOLARS ACHIEVEMENT PROGRAM (SSAP) at Occidental College to combat differences in learning style, culture, race, socio-economic status, religion, sexual-preference and perspective of science and medicine. The mission of SSAP is to advance and enhance the professional fields of Science, Mathematics and Health by encouraging diverse scientific leadership and exposing science students to a variety of communities. SSAP is a collaboratively run program of science students and faculty. MUEY HAW "PENNY" SAEPHAN is from San Francisco, CA, and the eldest child of 16 siblings. At Occidental College, she became a project director for the Asian American Tutorial Project, and a youth leader for the L.A. Bridges Program at Luther Burbank Middle School. CHRISTINA WONG is a senior Biology major from San Francisco, CA. Christina aspires to become an urban ecologist, urban planner and international researcher who aids in the creation of sustainable and socially just societies. Sacramento native GENEVIEVE HANSEN is double majoring in Kinesiology and Spanish and plans to pursue a career in healthcare, specifically within a Spanish-speaking community. LETICIA DOMINGUEZ is from Oakland, CA and majored in Kinesiology. Currently working as a personal trainer, she aspires to become a paramedic.
